ROYAL RANGERS
assisting missionaries through construction in America and in harsh, remote areas
of the world

PathFinder Missions is an exciting and challenging ministry of Royal Rangers.
It enables men and fourteen to seventeen-year-old boys* to assist in building projects through the Assemblies of God MAPS Construction programs.

Give us the remote village, the tiny tribe, the forgotten people...

The Lost.

Founded in 1995, PathFinder Missions exists to construct churches, Ranger camps, Christian schools, clinics, orphanages, missionary dwellings, or anything a missionary needs to build God's Kingdom at home in the USA, or in the most remote areas of the world.

Teams need a variety of construction talents, such as carpentry, masonry, framework, post and beam work, and native material construction. Accepting the challenge of a Royal Rangers PathFinder Missions trip may also require you to use your campcraft, woodsman-ship, backpacking, and survival skills.

PathFinder Missions trips are classified by three levels of intensity, from entry level to advanced, and awarded accordingly:

The Bronze PathFinder Mission — U.S. Missions construction projects outside one's home district. (Such as Indian reservations or in urban settings.)

The Silver PathFinder Mission — Overseas projects to moderately accessible construction sites with basic conveniences. (Such as churches, Rangers camps, or orphanages.)

The Gold PathFinder Mission — Overseas construction projects to harsh, remote areas of the world where other teams are unable to go due to the tough living conditions of these assignments. (Such as packing or boating equipment and building supplies to site.)

PathFinders conduct MAPS Construction projects on Indian reservations where conditions often require them to sleep in tents and prepare their own meals. When called upon to do so, they are willing to live and perform assignments in tough rainforest or jungle conditions. They travel up the Andes Mountains at 15,000 feet, into the scorching or sometimes freezing deserts, up the Amazon River, or into the heart of Africa. While PathFinders are self-sufficient and thrive on adventure, the work conditions don't define the mission, but rather the condition of the lost.

If you want to pick-up a hammer and nail, and, yes, your backpack, to be mightily used by God... get involved in PathFinder Missions.

“PathFinder Missions exists to build God's Kingdom at home in the USA, or in the most REMOTE AREAS of the world.”

*Boys 14 & 15 years-of-age may participate in a PathFinder Missions trip when accompanied by their legal guardian and all necessary forms have been completed and mandated insurance secured; Boys 16 & 17 years-of-age may participate without being accompanied by their legal guardian when all necessary forms have been completed and mandated insurance secured.
